Dear [redacted]

STAT

Here, as promised, is the transcript of our conversation some weeks ago. As I said before, I am delighted by the amount of helpful information it contains. And since a good portion of this is material that does not show up in the written record, your willingness to share your experiences with us is all the more appreciated.

Please feel free to make changes to clarify the meaning of the transcript or amplify a particular point you were making. There are a couple of passages where your meaning or words were not clear; help here would be especially valuable. For the most part these places have been noted by question marks.

I am enclosing a self-addressed envelope that you can use to return the transcript once you have finished going over it. If you have any questions about it, don't hesitate to call me at [redacted]

Your note and the Angleton Security and Intelligence Fund letter reached me and was read with interest, if occasional bemusement. Some things--or rather, people--never change, do they? Thanks for passing it along.

I am to go to Houston next week to talk with our friend there. Then, except for the final interview with Angleton, I shall be ready to write.

Again, please know of my deep appreciation for all your help. The very best of new years to you.

Sincerely yours,

STAT
